Bank-Grade Security

Your clients' data is protected by design

LexBox uses AES-256-GCM encryption — the same standard used by banks and governments. Each law firm gets a unique encryption key derived from a platform master key, meaning your documents are completely isolated from other firms.

AES-256-GCM Encryption
Every document is encrypted at rest using authenticated encryption.

Per-Firm Key Isolation
Your encryption key is unique. No other firm can ever access your data.

Zero-Knowledge Architecture
Keys are derived at runtime — never stored in the database.

Secure Storage Paths
Documents stored in isolated directories per organisation.
